

Positive Networking Helps Our Cause!

There continues to be a growing positive response to our efforts to promote the cause of American Workers and the businesses that employ them. As I speak with business owners, they inform me that America's merchandisers are often heavily invested in manufacturing facilities in foreign countries so it is in their best interest to feature foreign made items as opposed to items made in the U.S.A.

YOUR PURCHASING HABITS
ARE BEING NOTICED
BUY AMERICAN MADE

On a positive note, as the American people speak up and are directing more of their dollars in support of American made products, our concerns and purchasing habits are being noticed in board rooms and by corporate investors. Business leaders see that unemployed Americans are unable to spend money regardless where products are made, so increasing production in the U.S.A. will both employ more Americans and increase the purchasing power of their American customers.

The recession and the efforts of the Buy American Made Campaign have increased Americans' understanding of how detrimental outsourcing industries and the loss of jobs has been to every American. We must remain united as America's consumers so "Positive Networking Helps Our Cause". Every opportunity you have, spread the word about where American made product are sold so we can help industries maintain and expand their product lines here in the U.S.A.

Join Michael Blichasz and his guests every Wednesday at 11 A.M. for another edition of American Workers Radio on 860 AM broadcasting in the Philadelphia area. You can listen live or to rebroadcast anytime on the Internet from:

Your help to promote positive change in the U.S.A. is appreciated.

We Can't Be In Denial!

For many years, millions of Americans remained in denial about the depth of the current five-year recession. People thought that service based jobs would continue to grow and that there were sufficient government safety net programs in place so America would not experience a prolonged recession. Unfortunately, the prolonged recession has been a major wake up call for Americans, and through the efforts of the Buy American Made Campaign we must unite to change our past and begin a new future.

I make these statements after reviewing the responses received from my radio broadcasts, newspaper, Internet commentaries and face-to-face discussions with supporters of the Buy American Made Campaign. We agree that after hitting the snooze button over the years, Americans are waking up to the reality of 30-plus years of the loss of industries and jobs skills. We clearly see that the main reason America's economy has declined is fewer jobs and ways for people to be able to support themselves.

In order for us to get America back to a better employment reality, America's elected and business leaders must demonstrate their ability to work together to restore and create tens of millions of additional job opportunities. This is not an impossible number to reach when you consider that there over 29 million small, medium and large businesses operating in the U.S.A. already employing over 143 million Americans. However, with a population of 314 million, America should have at least 60% of its people or 188 million people with full and part time jobs. Presently just over 45% of the American people are employed so we need 45 million additional full and part-time jobs to see America's economy flourish once again.

Securing new jobs is not going to be easy when industries have already relocated overseas or American businesses are purchasing the bulk of their merchandise from foreign suppliers. We can change this reality by directing more of our dollars in support of products made by American workers and circulating more of our dollars within the U.S.A.

Tens of Millions Need Us to Unite!

Before the new world economy expanded and outsourcing became the thing to do, America's graduates were able to find jobs prior to or shortly after graduation. Today, many of our graduates are among the tens of millions of Americans who can't find jobs. Some Americans point the finger of blame at government leaders for not looking out for the people, while others blame the free market economy for taking control of our lives and livelihoods. However, much of the blame is due to the fact that the American people did not stop, look, listen and assess what was going wrong as we hit bump after bump on the road of America's declining economy and the loss of tens of millions of jobs during the last 30 years.

As of June 2012, America's population is over 313 million. There are 142 million Americans presently employed (that's 45.5% of the population). There are 24 million plus people in need of a job immediately and millions more seeking part-time job opportunities. When you add in hundreds of thousands of new graduates seeking to be employed as soon as possible, you can understand why the efforts of the Buy American Made Campaign are so important.

With a population of 313 million, America's businesses should be able to have job opportunities available for at least 60% of its employable people with full and part-time jobs. That means we should have around 187 million people employed and paying U.S. income taxes, or 45 million more people employed than we have today. With only 142 million employed, we know why our economy is where it is and why America's national elected leaders are borrowing 40 cents per dollar to maintain government services. Pointing the finger of blame is not worth our time or effort, but working together to expand America's industrial landscape with the theme, "what was once made in America, will be made in America again" is where our efforts must be focused!

Keep looking for, asking for and buying American made products and be sure to keep me posted about your efforts. For more information about the statistics listed in today's commentary, look at the U.S. Debt Clock located on the front page of AmericanWorkersRadio.com.

Americans Want and Need More Jobs!

In the last few years the American people have been more vocal about the high unemployment rate affecting America's workers of all ages. When the unemployment rate was around 6%, the effects of outsourcing manufacturing was less noticeable. However today, we see clearly what outsourcing jobs has done to America's economy and how important it is to restore jobs in the U.S.A.

As more people speak up it is important for us to support the private sector industries located within America's shores so they can expand and produce more products to compete with those now mainly being imported. By seeking out and purchasing the items made in America you are helping increase employment opportunities, ranging from the production of the items, to sales, shipping, office management, advertising and many other jobs that are needed for private sector businesses to get their products to the market place.

All of us see very clearly that America can't continue to be a sales point for imported products, so it's time for each of us to take a second look at every item we purchase and reward the companies that manufacture and distribute their products in the U.S.A. I also want you to know that your example at the cash register is very important because the computer keeps track of all products sold. This allows store managers to see which products are moving off store shelves and as businesses owners see a trend of more American made products being sold, they will continue to seek out American made presalers.

During this graduation season, spread the word to others about our efforts and invite them to check out: AmericanWorkersNeedYou.com, because Americans Want and Need More Jobs!
